County to seek Corps aid

BY ED LEPOMA

Heavy rains in recent weeks have caused the Hancock County Board of Supervisors to ask the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers for assistance to prevent future flooding and shore erosion.

Specifically, Civil Defense Director Bobby Boudin wants engineers to look into opening up the mouth of the Jourdan River, which empties into the Bay of St. Louis.

Boudin says the 100-foot mouth is silted up from past heavy rains, and flood waters from area creeks back up because the flow is impeded.

"The Jourdan rose 35 to 40 feet along Texas Flat Road in last week's heavy rains, and licked at some homes," said Boudin. Since Hurricane Camille, homes built in flood-prone areas have to be elevated at least 13 feet, he said.

Boudin said the problem is that creeks on the eastern borders of Hancock and Harrison County can't drain fast enough.

"All those creeks flow into the Jourdan, and if the water can't go under Hwy. 603 fast enough, then it will go over the highway like it did last May," said Boudin.

Apartments jeopardize Bay plan

Member opposes 'lifestyle'

BY MARY G. SEILEY

Bay St. Louis City Council members replowed controversial planning grounds Tuesday, with one emphasizing a profound opposition to additional multi-family development in the city.

Council member James Thriffley said that "rather than endorsing this kind of lifestyle," he'd vote against the plan's provisions for such development in his district.

The proposed plan calls for a large district of where a range of density would be allowed, from single family houses up to developments containing eight units.

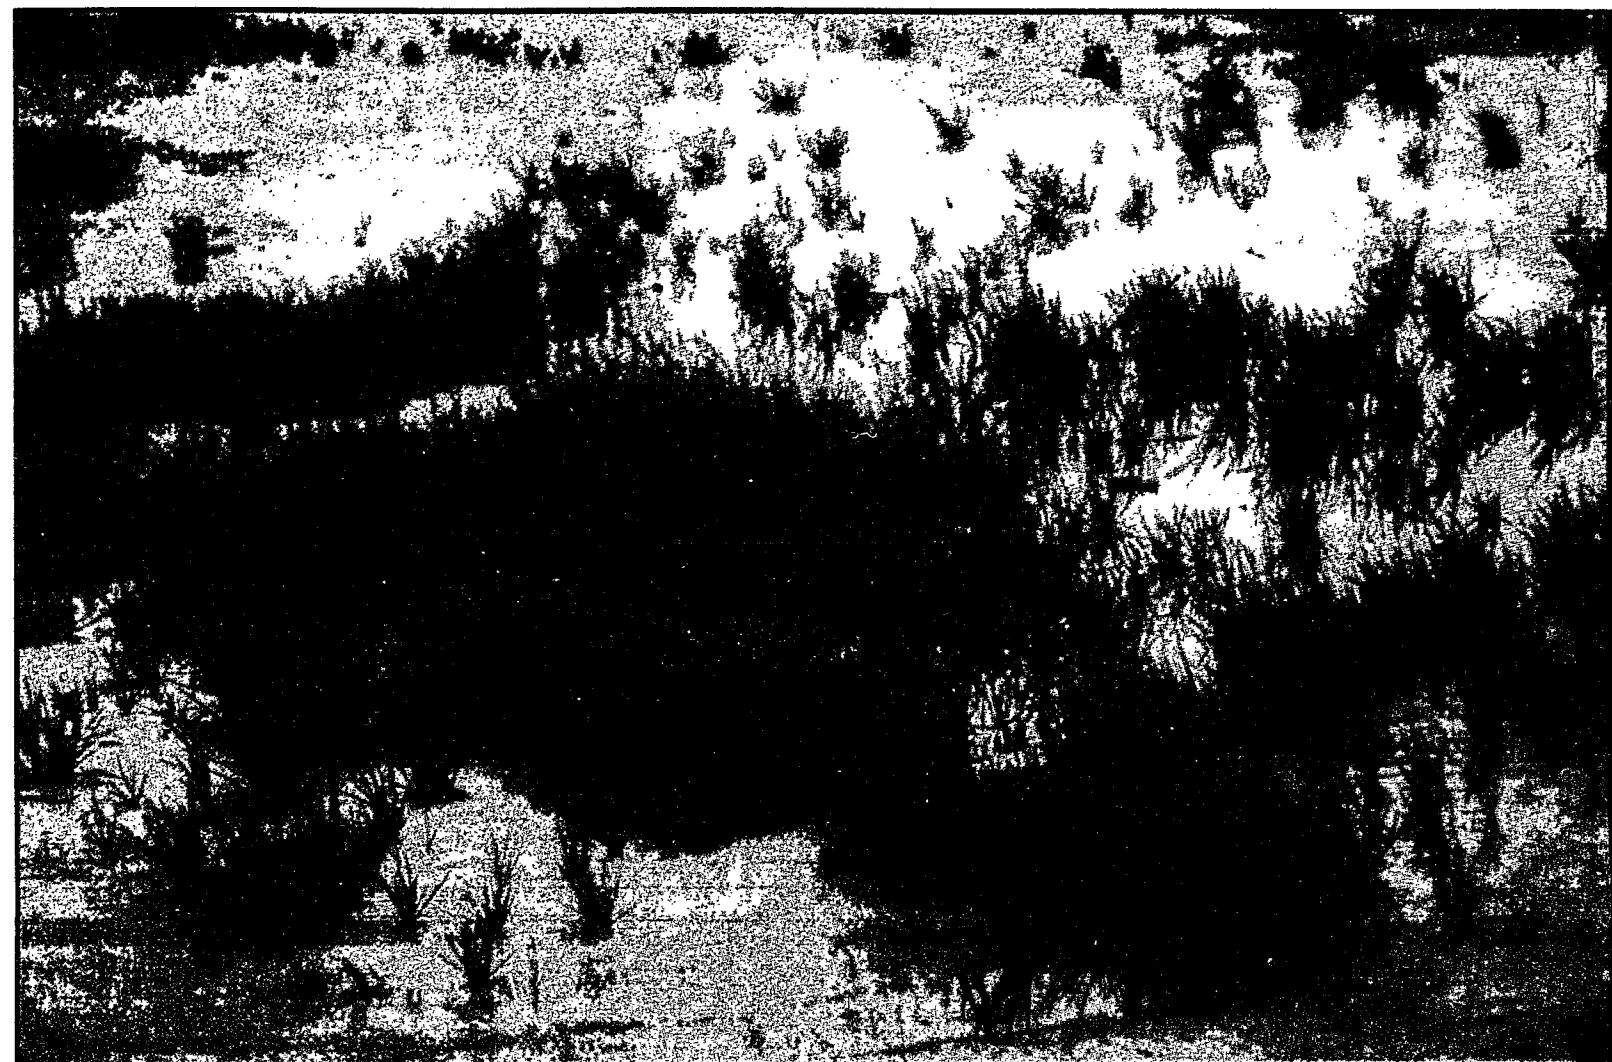

City Planner Les Fillingame was trying to persuade Thriffley that multi-family development can be a benefit to a city and its residents, when Thriffley asked Fillingame whether he'd want to have apartments built near Fillingame's residence on 10th Street.

Fillingame said that'd be fine with him, if the development was planned correctly.

That's not going to happen, however, council president Tad Black told Fillingame, because 10th Street is zoned for single family development only and will stay that way.

Meanwhile, Thriffley also is balking at the idea of designating the entire length of Main Street for mixed use development, which could include small-scale commercial or business development.

"We're not talking about shopping centers," Mayor Eddie Favre told Thriffley, but the plan would encourage mixed use development of Main Street, retaining single family homes amid low-impact commercial or professional office development.

Beach or future wetlands?

Desperate to deal with a deteriorating beachfront, Bay St. Louis city officials have loaned a grader to county officials to begin maintenance work. Virtually no physical shaping has been done by the county's sand beach maintenance personnel in the year since the $700,000 beach was laid between Bookter Street and Bay View Court, due to a county equipment shortage. While the county awaits delivery of a new grader, the new strand has suffered unsightly pools of stagnate water and, in front of St. Stanislaus, thick vegetation has taken hold. There is even some concern that state environmental officials could step in and seek to protect that area from maintenance grading, or that the vegetation could become an attractive nesting spot for endangered species. One city official joked that municipal employees may have to swing into action to fluff up the crusted sand, taking a battery of rakes and shovels down to the shoreline, unless maintenance grading begins immediately. The city's grader is on loan to the county for that job, however, and the city has offered to allow its use for the county beach section south of Washington Street as well. Grading started this week. development.

Thriffley was unsuayed, saying he'd been asked by residents of his district to "take care of their quality of life."

Provisions for additional commercial uses and more multi-family development in town are but two sticking points that have left council bogged down with action on a proposed comprehensive plan for development.

The city has to have a plan in place before it can zone the acreage it annexed some five years ago -- Casino Magic's 600 acres and lands adjoining it in the Cedar Point area.

Without zoning, developers could build virtually anything in the area, without regard to local objections. State law, however, requires that the city have a comprehensive development plan in place before it can zone newly annexed areas.

The major problem with the proposed plan among council members is whether the plan should allow for additional casinos in the newly annexed area. Four of the five incumbent City Council members agreed, prior to annexation, to allow casino development on the so-called "Kinst" tract in Cedar Point.

Faced with an outcry from some residents, however, council is considering backing out of that pact and allowing only

Improved roads offshoot of Wellman

BY ED LEPOMA

Improved roads might be an offshoot of Wellman Inc., coming into Hancock County.

Amid a lot of hoopla last week, Gov. Kirk Fordice came to Bay St. Louis and announced that the giant plastics and fiber manufacturer will build a $330 million manufacturing plant on land that it will lease from the Port and Harbor Commission at Port Bienville Industrial Park.

A handful of engineers are already on site, and the facility is expected to start coming out of the ground this fall, drawing in an estimated 1,000-plus construction workers.

With this influx in mind, Hancock County Supervisors met in a workshop Tuesday afternoon to discuss improving access roads to and from Port Bienville.

Invited to the meeting were: Brooks Miller, district engineer for the State-Aid Division of the Mississippi Department of Transportation; Tommy Moran, county road supervisor; and Larry Seals, county engineer.

Supervisors attending included: Board President Philip Moran of District 5; District 1 Supervisor Rocky Pullman; and District 2 Supervisor Lyonie "Jeep" Ladner.

Supervisors discussed several options, but singled in on a plan that would widen and overlay Lakeshore Road and Lower Bay Road, as they come off Highway 90. They want to four-lane Lower Bay Road from Old Hwy. 90 to the entrance of Port Bienville.

Miller said there are funds available through the state's Department of Economic and Community Development, which could be tapped for improving access roads to major industrial sites.

Moran estimated that 65 per-

ST. ANN AND ST. JOHN NEWS

Thoughts for meditation:
Nothing is worth more than today.

—Goethe
Lord, help me have a generous heart. I go through life so quickly that I often forget to take the time to notice the needs of those around me. Give me the grace to respond with Your love to those You put in my path. Amen.

This is the day the Lord has made. Let us rejoice and be glad in it.

Ps. 118:24
No one can go back and make a brand new start, my friend, but anyone can start from here and make a brand new end.

He will be the sure foundation for your times, a rich store of salvation and wisdom and knowledge; the fear of the Lord is the key to this treasure.

Is. 33:6
You cannot repent too soon, for you know not how soon it may be too late.

Seek the Lord while He may be found; call on Him while He is near.

Is. 55:6
Restoration always seems to bring joy.

The ransomed of the Lord will return. They will enter Zion with singing; everlasting joy will crown their heads. Gladness and joy will overtake them, and sorrow and sighing will flee away.

Isaiah 35:10

Pass Christian health clinic dedicated

BY ED LEPOMA

City and county officials gathered in Pass Christian Friday, April 12, for the grand opening of a combined health clinic-human services building located downtown.

The $300,000 brick facility is located at 257 Davis Avenue, and was erected to serve the health and nutritional needs of families in the western communities of Harrison County. Pass Christian provided another $100,000 for the purchase and clearing of the land.

District 3 Supervisor David LaRosa said the completion of the project "marked a new era in Harrison County where cities and counties work together" for the common good.

"This is a classic example," said LaRosa. Dr. Ray Travnick, regional health director, said, "We are entering a new era in Harrison County, and it's a great day for the Human Resources Department and Pass Christian."

He said completion of the new building means most people in Harrison County are within 15 miles of health and nutritional aid.

And, Pass Christian Mayor Billy McDonald gave full credit for the project to former mayor, Ted Lawyer, who resigned last August, and to the present Board of Aldermen.

The clinic is expected to relieve congestion at health clinics in nearby Gulfport and Biloxi by offering various services every Monday and Thursday.

LaRosa said he hoped citizens in the rural communities of DeLisle and those off Dedeaux-Cuevas Road, plus those in Long Beach and Pass Christian would use the services that will be offered at the building.

Dr. Ray Stewart said the project was "an example of what can be done when governments work together."

"This building will be a valuable part of this community for years to come," he predicted. Stewart said clinic hours will be 8 a.m. until noon and 1 p.m. until 4:30 p.m. each Monday and Thursday. He said treatment will be offered for various illnesses, including the common cold or influenza. He will be assisted by a nurse, a nutritionist and a clerical staff.

The doctor said days might be expanded if there is a heavier-than-expected demand for health services.

Services offered will include immunizations for various diseases, pre-marital blood tests, pregnancy tests, tuberculin skin tests, and tests for sexually transmitted diseases, including the HIV test for AIDS.

The clinic will also provide family planning services.

Carolyn Delorio will run the Human Services side of the 4,300 square foot building, and she said the office will be open the second and third Thursday of each month for distributing food stamps, and commodities. She said persons can also file application for food stamps and commodities at the new office. Delorio said hours of operation on Thursdays would be 9:30 a.m. until 1:30 p.m., and on commodities days, until they are all distributed.

At the ceremonies, Delorio recalled the food stamps and commodities have been distributed at various sites in Pass Christian since 1965, including from "a leaking city barn."

"We won't have to use our umbrellas here," she said, pointing to the modern offices and waiting room.

The 4,300 square foot building has actually been open since last March, but a crowd of about 50 citizens turned out to view the complex and rub shoulders with city leaders.

Besides LaRosa and McDonald, three city aldermen attended the grand opening, including Michael Antoine, Margaret Jean Kalif and Vonnice Bodenschatz.

Rev. Joseph Calamari of Our Mother of Mercy Catholic Church delivered the invocation and blessed the building.

Moratoriums placed on high towers and adult entertainment

BY MARY G. SEILEY

Bay St. Louis city officials last week placed moratoriums on adult entertainment facilities and construction of high transmission towers.

The action came at the suggestion of city attorney John Scafide, who said more time is needed to finalize ordinances governing both.

The moratoriums, effective immediately, run for 120 days.

City officials for several weeks have had plans to enact regulations controlling adult bookstores, clubs and related activities. But Scafide said research on such an ordinance is time-consuming and a 120-day ban would give the city enough time to complete its study.

The same holds true with construction of high communications and transmission towers, said Scafide.

Several members of council have expressed dismay at the height of one such tower recently constructed near the depot. The tower, they say, detracts from the scenic vista of Bay St. Louis.

"CUEVAS" QUOTES"

By Ellis C. Cuevas

I was saddened to hear of the death of former Echo employee Mrs. Carmen Mitchell last week in Virginia Beach, Va.

Mrs. Mitchell was a long-time typesetter at The Echo. When I began at The Echo in 1957, she had started a few months before I joined the staff.

This was at a time when The Echo moved into offset printing, which was really in its infancy for newspapers.

Together we saw new and improved production measures. Some worked, while others did not do too well.

Typesetting equipment in those days was very slow and involved much more accuracy than it does today.

Mrs. Mitchell's first typesetting machine was limited to a few fonts, and everything had to be set twice in order to justify.

I was fortunate to work along with Mrs. Mitchell for many years until her retirement.

A long-time resident of Bay St. Louis, born in Costa Rica, Mrs. Mitchell still has two brothers and a sister residing in Bay St. Louis.

To her daughters Maureen and Sheila, brothers Lucien Kidd and Ainsworth Kidd and sister Mrs. Phyllis Seuzeneau and other family members, I wish each and everyone of you the best in the years ahead.

Yes, I remember Mrs. Mitchell for her dedication and service to the community at The Echo.

A motorist on Highway 90 near Pearlinton received a big surprise last Sunday.

Apparently the motorist in a pick-up truck threw a bag of garbage out the window and was seen not by one person, but two.

One who happened to see him was a Hancock County deputy sheriff, who gave the motorist the whole treatment of blue lights and all.

Litter is a big problem on our highways and roadways.

I am glad to see an officer of the law take the time to give a person littering the attention they need.

By the way, the other person who saw the littering take place was turning around to get the license number of the vehicle to turn over to the sheriff's department.

Our cities, county and state spends thousands of dollars each year in having litter collected along our roadways and highways.

The bottom line is that we all end up paying for careless littering.

Please do your part, do not litter. Thanks.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Community leader would like to know status of family clinic in Hancock

Dear Editor,

In August of 1995 the citizens of Hancock County were informed that the Coastal Family Clinic would be closing. On Sept. 29, 1995, even though 5,200 of our citizens had been recipients of the clinic's services, the doors of the clinic closed anyway.

The former county supervisors had promised $10,000 and the use of the old health department on Dunbar Avenue for the clinic's re-opening. The supervisors were to meet with the Coastal Clinic's board to develop strategies for re-opening the clinic.

Since the present board of supervisors have been in office no information has been forthcoming. They do not seem to know anything about the situation with Coastal Family Clinic.

I have recently had conversations with a few of our state legislators, and they are willing to help look into the matter of re-negotiating the opening of the family clinic.

As a citizen of Hancock County, I wish to know what is going on and what our cities and county officials can do about this problem.

Thank you,
Geraldine Lang

Veterans update from 'The American Legion' magazine

By Donald Mauffray
Veterans Service Officer
Foreign nationals who served in the U.S. Armed Forces during the Gulf War will be eligible for U.S. citizenship without the usual five-year waiting period and accompanying red tape.

President Clinton has issued an executive order waiving normal requirements for citizenship for foreign nationals — about 14,700 individuals — who served honorably on active duty during the period from Aug. 2, 1990 to April 11, 1991.

To avoid court nullification of the order, which befell President Ronald Reagan in 1987 when he offered similar benefits to foreign nationals involved with the Grenada invasion, Clinton did not place geographic boundaries on the order.

In other words, GIs did not have to physically serve in the Gulf. Instead, all foreign nationals on active duty at that time are eligible, regardless of where they were stationed.

Case Histories Sought
Survivors of veterans who die while their VA disability claims are being processed currently are eligible for no more than one year's benefits owed the veteran. The American Legion is trying to get the law changed, because some VA claims take far in excess of three years to be settled.

If you are a survivor of a veteran who received only one year of benefits under this law, please contact The American Legion Magazine, Veterans Affairs Editor, P.O. Box 1055, Indianapolis, IN 46206.

Selected letters will be used as documentation to convince Congress that the law is unfair.

EDITORIAL

Public meetings need to be open

When the new year dawned, the citizens of Hancock County welcomed in a Board of Supervisors replete with fresh faces. In stunning fashion last fall, the electorate pushed out the old and voted for a change in direction in county leadership.

Optimism was bountiful as "The Baby Boomer Board" was sworn in. The supervisors painted pictures of a brighter horizon.

But unbeknownst to many at the time, except maybe the supervisors themselves, this board of political novices would conduct some of its business away from the judicious scrutiny of the public and media.

The board has met twice in the past few weeks without properly notifying the public and media. And it is not uncommon to see several supervisors traveling in the same vehicle, or dining together. What is crucial to remember is that when at least three supervisors are together, it is considered a quorum, and thus subject to the state's open meeting laws.

Unfortunately, these meetings appear to be a trend that is gaining popularity. The once sleepy Hancock Port and Harbor Commission, rejuvenated with four new members, has met in apparent violation of open meeting laws twice in the past few months, once on the morning the supervisors signed off on the deal to offer inducements for Wellman Inc. to locate at Port Bienville Industrial Park.

Even the Bay St. Louis-Waveland School Board in the past year has joined the crowd, frequently slipping into marathon executive sessions at the beginning of a meeting, only to find a near empty room waiting when finally emerging to complete the remainder of the agenda.

Such maneuvering comes at a time when public mistrust of government and politicians is at unprecedented heights. The Congressional elections of 1994, as well as the county's own numbing elections last fall, are indicators of voter unrest. And that momentum is showing no signs of abating.

What the public officials have to realize is that they are the stewards of taxpayers' dollars, and they must act responsibly and legally in the carrying out of those duties.

The public has a right to know how their dollars are being spent and for what reasons. After all, the claims docket of any governmental body is but a financial diary of money that came directly out of the citizens' wallets.

Any deliberation, discussion or vote on how the money is allocated must be held in an open forum. There should be no discussion behind closed doors, and what amounts to a ceremonial vote following in the open. That is the law.

The public's right to know is protected by the state's "Sunshine Laws," which are very specific in nature. They set the guidelines on what constitutes a public meeting, how meetings must be called, and the appropriate notification procedures.

It is unlawful for a quorum (three-fifths majority) of any legal body to gather by "happenstance" at a social function, the lunch counter, or any other chance encounter, and discuss topics germane to their constituents. The weather, sports, even Gerald's latest show may be discussed, but not issues that fall under their governance.

The laws are good in that they prohibit boards or city councils from gathering for what appears to be a social lunch, with the underlying purpose of making decisions away from the public eye. The laws can be painful for elected officials, as the Waveland Board of Aldermen discovered last summer and the Bay St. Louis City Council is learning now.

But those laws protect the public, and of that, there can be no compromise. Granted, some of the supervisors are rookies to the political playing field, so they may not be as cognizant of the law as they should be. What is agitating is that these "meetings" and "lunches" seem to be happening with alarming frequency.

Curiously, legal scholars offer conflicting opinions on the validity of actions taken or resolutions adopted at an "illegal" meeting. Some say the action is automatically void, others contend it may be voided only if challenged.

Either way, those actions stand on shaky legal ground at best. The public is demanding the supervisors and other governing bodies to conduct their business in the open. The public will not sit by idly and watch their elected officials decide crucial issues behind closed doors. Neither will the media.

Earth Week

During Earth Week 1996 trained volunteers along the Gulf Coast will clean debris from selected sections of beach within the Gulf Islands National Seashore in preparation for five years of monthly monitoring.

Volunteers from the South Mississippi Environmental and Agricultural Coordination Organization (SMEACO) will monitor the sites on Ship, Horn and Petis Bois islands as part of the National Marine Debris Monitoring Program, an effort coordinated by the Center for Marine Conservation in Washington. The Mississippi Department of Marine Resources, Chevron-Pascagoula, and Ship Island Excursions will provide boat transportation to these offshore sites.

Data will be collected on specific debris items to answer scientific questions: Is the amount of debris changing and what are the major sources of this debris?

The data will provide the basis for informed management and enforcement decisions dealing with trash in the marine environment.

The program divides the U.S. coastline into nine regions based on ocean currents and regional makeup. The monitoring will begin along the Gulf of Mexico due to its Special Area Designation under the marine litter law and because of the concern for clean beaches and other natural resources in the area.

"We commend the SMEACO volunteers, Chevron-Pascagoula and Ship Island Excursions for their long-term commitment to this project," DMR Executive Director Glade Woods said. "We at DMR are proud to be involved."

Diamondhead winners

At the Diamondhead Art Show recently, Pam Marshall, left, and Ruth Rhodes from Diamondhead and Weldon Bordelon Jr., Hope-land, La., won honorable mention awards. The show was sponsored by the Diamondhead Women's Club, and all proceeds went to Alzheimer's.

Jillian Banden, a seventh grade student at Our Lady Academy, has been chosen to represent Mississippi in the RespecTeen National Youth Forum in Washington, DC May 11-16.

As a result of entering the RespecTeen "Speak for Yourself" letter-writing contest, Banden has won an all-expense paid trip to the Youth Forum for herself and a parent or guardian and a $100 savings bond award for her social studies teacher, Joan Thomas.

Banden's letter was chosen from more than 15,000 letters from seventh and eighth graders nationwide who submitted letter to their U.S. Representatives.

The letters were judged by a panel of educators based on quality and clarity of thought, argument, supporting data, expression, sincerity and originality. Banden's letter address the issue of the ozone layer.

Banden is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gary Everhart of Gulfport.

In the same contest last year, Lawren Cowand, presently eighth grade, was chosen as a district winner in the RespecTeen contest and received a $50 savings bond and a certificate.

The RespecTeen National Youth Forum gives students an opportunity to learn about the legislative process first hand and share their ideas with influential decision-makers in government.

Lutheran Brotherhood, a non-for-profit fraternal benefit society, sponsors the RespecTeen National Youth Forum.

Susanne L. Robinson has been named as a STAR (Student-Teacher Achievement Recognition) Student for the 1995-96 school year by the Mississippi Economic Council, sponsor of the program.

The Bay High School senior will be honored during the Education Celebration portion of the MEC's annual membership meeting April 18 in Jackson.

Star Students are selected on the basis of academic excellence. American College Test scores and scholastic averages are considered in designation of the school's Star Student, explained Bob Pittman of Jackson, MEC president.

"The Star Program encourages and promotes academic achievement among Mississippi's high school seniors," he said.

Each Star Student is asked to designate a Star Teacher, the classroom teacher who has made the greatest contribution to the student's scholastic achievement.

Kathryn C. MacDowell was designated Star Teacher.

All 300-plus Star Students and their Star Teachers will receive recognition from the Council; and the top 25 Star Students, named All-Star Scholars, and their Star Teachers will be presented scholarship awards. ## Long Beach student, teacher selected for overseas adventure

This summer a Long Beach student and teacher will study the Mediterranean Sea aboard one of the Navy's oceanographic survey ships as part of Project Marco Polo.

Since 1990 the annual educational program, a joint project of the National Geographic Society and the U.S. Navy, has sent American students to sea with science teachers and Navy scientists to study the world's oceans and seas and to experience the countries and cultures that these waters border.

James "Jimmy" H. Hamilton IV, a 10th grader at Long Beach High, was chosen to accompany the expedition during the Mississippi Science and Engineering Fair held at the Mississippi Coast Coliseum April 12.

In his exhibit, "A Nutrient Enrichment Bioassay on Phytoplankton of the Mississippi Sound," he added nutrients to samples collected from the Mississippi Sound and examined the effect on the growth of microorganisms in the water. Laboratory work for the two-year study was conducted at the University of Southern Mississippi's Center for Marine Science located at Stennis Space Center.

Hamilton will be accompanied by his science teacher and project advisor, Christine Kayes. They will be among 23 students and teachers embarking aboard the USNS Wyman in the Mediterranean Sea this summer.

Project Marco Polo helps students and teachers learn about the oceans, world cultures, geography and global environment through a multi-disciplinary study, including physical oceanography, biology, geology, meteorology and nautical science on board naval oceanographic ships.

Like the project's namesake, 13th century explorer Marco Polo, participants share the knowledge they acquire through lectures to schools and community groups back home.

This is the second year that the Navy has sponsored Mississippians on the expedition through the state science fair winners.

The Navy determines the project's location based on deployment of its oceanographic ships. In past years, the expedition has traveled to Indonesia, Japan, Egypt, Greece, Italy, Malta and Tunisia, Spain and Morocco.

The 285-foot survey ship USNS Wyman, with a cruising speed of 12 knots, is operated by the Military Sealift Command. The oceanographic detachment on board the ship is composed of scientists from the Naval Oceanographic Office at Stennis Space Center. The office is the largest component of the Naval Meteorology and Oceanography Command.

Lay down rules for mooching friend

By Dr. Ann Jarratt
4-H Youth Development
Specialist
Mississippi Cooperative
Extension Service

"My best friend is causing a problem for me with my family. When she comes to our house (which is about every day), she acts as if she owns the place. She raids the refrigerator and never bothers to ask if it's for the family dinner. She may cut a huge piece of pie and only eat two bites of it. My parents don't mind sharing our food, but they resent her wastefulness and rudeness."

"She goes through my closet and borrows whatever she likes. She has twice as many clothes as I do, so I don't know why she does this. The only way I ever get them back is to find them in her closet and bring them home. They're always dirty and stained by then. I don't want to lose her as a friend, but I'm getting pretty fed up with how she's acting. What should I do?"

When you get tired of being walked on, you can stand up and refuse to be used like a door mat. The next time she comes over, tell her your family developed some house rules.

You may tell her that you are not allowed to borrow or lend clothes anymore. You can describe the rule that controls refrigerator raiding as well.

TEEN TALK

If she is a thinking person and cares about you as a friend, she will become a more courteous guest. If those two assumptions are false, then what have you lost if she spends her time raiding someone else's home?

***
"I have an older brother who can do no wrong. Whatever he tries, he does perfectly. Teachers think he's perfect. Girls think he's a hunk. Guys think he's great. I wish he would just disappear for a few years. There's no way I can compete with all of that. What can I do since murder is illegal?"

I can understand that he's a hard act to follow. The first thing you must do is stop comparing yourself to him. You're a totally unique person in your own right. You don't have to try to compete with him. Be yourself. No one on the planet can do that as well as you.

Concentrate on what you want to be and do. Emphasize your strengths. Do not concentrate on what you consider to be your weaknesses. Everyone has characteristics they wish were different — even your brother probably does.

If you've been spending time noticing what your brother can do that you can't, STOP. Instead, start making a list of the things you do well, as well as the things about yourself that you like or are proud of. Add to that list every week.

Next, you might jot down the things you want to accomplish this semester — school things, personal things, community things, family things. Beside each one, list a few actions that will be required for you to accomplish each one. Finally, beside that, write down that you WILL do by a specific date (write that date).

After writing your goals, evaluate yourself as to whether you have taken the various steps necessary to meet the goals. You can't control other people's thoughts and opinions. What is important is what you think about yourself.

Enjoy the fact that your brother is well liked. If he were a bum, you wouldn't like those reflections clouding your way.

***
If you have questions concerning your teenage years, write Dr. Ann Jarratt, 4-H youth development specialist, Box 9641, Mississippi State, MS 39762.

Congratulations to The Winners of Hancock Bank's 1996 Leo W. Seal Teacher Award

Grants of $1000 each were recently awarded to five teachers nominated from four South Mississippi counties for classroom projects. This marks the second annual Hancock Bank "Leo W. Seal Teacher Recognition Awards" spotlighting teachers who best apply their teaching and leadership skills.

The winners include:

- Marcia Boyer, Bay Middle School, Bay St. Louis, "Building Bridges: Breaking Cultural Barriers By Building Cultural Awareness Through Music"
- Sylvia Ferguson, South Side Upper Elementary, Picayune, "Hands On Math & Science For The Students And Their Families"
- Lori Fisher & Margaret Starek, Harper McCaughan Elementary, Long Beach, "Discovery Time Travelers: Ancient Civilizations"
- Janet Freeman, Waveland Elementary, Waveland, "Art Treasures On The Coast"
- Susan Peterson, Harrison County Child Development Center, Gulfport, "Normalization Through Adaptive/Augmentative Communication"

Begun in 1994, the endowment fund is managed as a permanent fund of the Gulf Coast Community Foundation's "Pat Santucci Friends of Public Education" program.

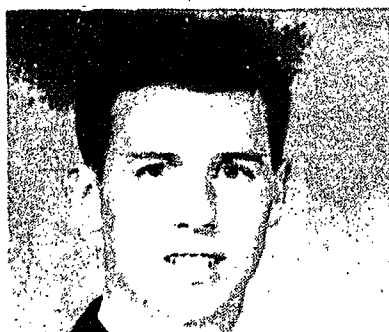

Applications for nominations for the 1997 awards will be available by September 15, 1996, at all public school offices and Hancock Bank offices in all four counties or from the Gulf Coast Community Foundation by calling 601-868-1563.

ONCE UPON A TIME.

In a beautiful community with a lot of kids, there was a DREAM to build a soccerplex so that the kids could play all day.

Once the soccerplex was complete, the kids of this beautiful community could invite all their friends, from other communities over to play soccer.

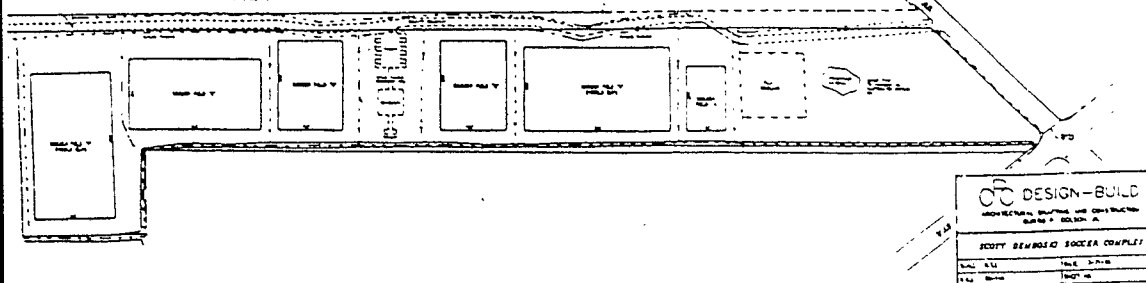

And the children that came to visit would bring their parents and coaches to watch soccer games at this premier facility.

Visitors would become enchanted with this beautiful community, and enjoy their stay and come back to spend many days in our beautiful community.

SO, the adults in this community decided that they would build a complex for their children and many generations of children.

HELP THIS STORY END HAPPILY EVER AFTER.

PLEASE contribute to the SCOTT DEMBOSKI MEMORIAL SOCCERPLEX FUND to build the best soccerplex in the State of Mississippi.

It's an investment in our kids and in ourselves. A single tournament of 48 teams can generate as much as $242,000 to our community, hosting families for a weekend.

Your contribution will be used to install a well and a sprinkler system, plant grass, and initiate the construction of an awards pavilion and restrooms.

Talent search winner returns to the spotlight

It was only a couple of months ago that Jodi Harris took the stage in Boots Cabaret and gave her award-winning singing performance in the Boomtown Talent Search finals and came out a winner and $10,000 richer.

Harris, an Ocean Springs resident, who made her educational priority said that singing is a dream she has had all of her life. Since her win at Boomtown, she has had several local appearances. Most recently she performed at the Country Cajun Crawfish Festival at the Mississippi Gulf Coast Coliseum where she met Nashville greats Charlie Daniels and Aaron Tippin.

Harris said it was a great experience for her. She said this is the first time someone has asked for her autograph.

Harris has been getting a lot of "little nibbles" lately. She has been working with her new band to gain stage experience and to make a demo tape before heading to Nashville. She is anxious to go to Nashville, but she wants to make sure she is ready.

"I have 'an edge' they tell me, and the positive attention has been great," says Harris.

Coast Episcopal Students visit SSC

Students in Amanda Carver's 8th-grade physical science class from Coast Episcopal School visited NASA's John C. Stennis Space Center recently to study geographic information systems and the Global Positioning System technology.

A geographic information system, or GIS, is a computerized way of taking an in-depth look at a specific area on Earth. Through the Global Positioning System, information can also be gathered about specific locations on Earth. This information can then be compared to the same locations on existing digital maps to show such scenarios as coastal erosions and other environmental, economic and ecological impacts.

While at Stennis, the students received hands-on training on how to use hand-held Global Positioning System units to locate and record features during actual field work around the center. Afterward, the took their units into the NASA/Pearl River Community College GIS Training Facility's computer lab to process, examine and interpret the data they gathered.

Carver plans to integrate this information into the students' regular classroom lessons. She also has hopes of expanding upon this knowledge later in the year through a project in which the students study coastal erosion along the Hancock County shoreline.

As part of NASA's ongoing commitment to transferring NASA technology into the public and private sector, the training session was sponsored by GeoTek, a geographic technology management services company located at Stennis Space Center and Corvallis Micro-technology, Oregon.

Former Bay resident receives Silver Em Award from Ole Miss

A man who has led three newspapers to win four Pulitzer Prizes has been named the 1996 Silver Em recipient at The University of Mississippi.

Gregory E. Favre, executive editor of The Sacramento Bee, and former resident of Bay St. Louis, accepted his award during luncheon ceremonies at the annual meeting of the Mississippi Scholastic Press Association (MSPA), which is headquartered at Ole Miss.

Favre is the 38th recipient of the Silver Em, which is given annually to an outstanding print journalist with a Mississippi background. The selection is made by a panel of former Silver Em winners, and the award is sponsored jointly by the Ole Miss Department of Journalism and MSPA, which is comprised of high school newspaper and yearbook staffs.

Born in New Orleans, Favre grew up in Bay St. Louis, where he worked for The Sea Coast Echo, which was owned and edited by his father.

"The things I've learned working for Mom and Dad have stuck with me throughout my life," said Favre. "My dad, a politician as well as newspaper publisher, knew everybody, and they knew us. I knew when I wrote something about someone, I would see those people on the street the next day. I'd better have it right."

The issues of ethical behavior and acceptance of others were preached at his house from the day he was born, the journalist says. Accolades from friends when he was named 1994 Distinguished Citizen of the Year by the Golden Empire of the Boy Scouts of America attest that these sermons are deeply rooted in his life. He has been known to resign from a job rather than compromise his ethical code and is reputed to be a leader in hiring and promoting minorities.

Favre's first Pulitzer Prize resulted from a series of articles the Palm Beach Post (Fla.) staff wrote on migrant workers.

Favre says the values he grew up with haven't changed, but journalists today need to be sure they apply them. Noting the integrity of earlier Silver Em recipients Turner Catledge, the late executive editor of the New York Times, and Hodding Carter Jr., the late editor of the Delta Democrat Times in Greenville, Favre says he has tried to emulate them. "I've tried to go through life doing as well as they did. If you're not ethical, you don't have anything."

Newspapers are getting more difficult to publish, says Favre, because the fragmentation of communities makes satisfying a mass readership difficult. However, he believes it is possible, and that newspapers may be the last hope for keeping communities together.

"If you truly persevere, you might bring about some change," said the Silver Em Recipient, who says he doesn't know anything else he could do other than being a journalist. "I live it."

It was during his days of writing sports for the State Times in Jackson that Favre first visited the Ole Miss campus to cover "Johnny Vaught's football."

"I was lucky to be doing that, and I'm lucky now," said Favre. "I get to go to a newspaper office every day, and I get paid for doing it. I can't think of anything better."

Following his early career on The Sea Coast Echo, Favre was sportswriter for the State Times in Jackson, assistant sports editor of the Atlanta Journal, managing editor at the Dayton Daily News, editor of the Palm Beach Post, news director of WPLG-TV in Miami, editor of the Corpus Christi Caller-Times, and managing editor of the Chicago Daily News and of the Chicago Sun-Times, another newspaper which received a Pulitzer Prize under Favre's leadership.

He became executive editor of The Sacramento Bee in 1984 and vice president/news for McClatchy Newspapers in 1989. Under his leadership, the Bee has won two Pulitzer Prizes. Favre has held numerous positions in the American Society of Newspaper Editors, of which he is immediate past president. In 1992, he was named News Executive of the Year by the California Press Association. He is on the board of directors of the Inter American Press Association, the board of advisers of the Newspaper Management Center at Northwestern University, board of journalism advisers of the Foundation for American Communications, and the advisory board for the University of California-Berkeley's Graduate Journalism School. He is a past president of the California Society of Newspaper Editors.

Accompanying Favre to Ole Miss was his wife, Dr. Beatrice Favre, a clinical psychologist, and their son, Jeff. The Favres also have a daughter, Monica.

Executive editor receives award

Gregory Favre, second from right, executive editor of The Sacramento Bee, receives the Silver Em Award from Dr. Robert C. Khayat, chancellor of The University of Mississippi, during the Mississippi Scholastic Press Association's annual meeting on the Oxford campus. The award is presented annually to an outstanding print journalist with a Mississippi background. With Khayat and Favre are Robin Street, far left, instructor in journalism and MSPA director, and Dr. Samir Husni, far right, associate professor of journalism and acting chair of the Ole Miss Department of Journalism.

Free screenings for disorders

What do Naomi Judd, football great Earl Campbell and Howie V., a retired captain in the New York City Fire Department, have in common? They have all suffered from panic disorder, an anxiety disorder which affects millions of Americans each year.

The hallmark symptoms of the illness are a sudden uncontrollable attack of terror, that can manifest itself with heart palpitations, dizziness, shortness of breath, an out of control or terribly frightening feeling or similar symptoms of anxiety.

Anxiety disorders, which also include obsessive compulsive disorders, generalized anxiety disorders, social phobia, and post-traumatic stress disorder are America's common mental health illness, affecting more than 28 million Americans each year.

On May 1, thousands of people across the country will participate in a free program which can help them or a loved one learn more about panic disorder and other anxiety disorders. The program will include viewing a video, completing a screening questionnaire, meeting a doctor or mental health professional to review the questionnaire and receive information about anxiety disorders.

CPC Sand Hill Behavioral Healthcare in Gulfport will take part in National Anxiety Disorders Screening Day. Free screenings are available all day from 8 a.m.-5 p.m. No reservations required. A special presentation on anxiety disorders will begin at 2 p.m. by Dr.

James A. Rusch, board certified psychiatrist at the hospital.

For additional information, call 1-800-831-1700.

Child center awarded grant

Lutheran Church of the Pines Christian Day Care, Waveland, has been awarded a $500 grant from Aid Association for Lutherans (AAL).

The grant is designed to help the staff of local early childhood centers pursue professional teacher development opportunities and strengthen administrative aspects of their program.

The grant was provided through the AAL Lutheran Early Childhood Education Grant Program, which was offered to more than 4,000 Lutheran early childhood centers throughout the country.

"AAL recognizes the role Lutheran early childhood educators play in providing the Christian building blocks needed for children to grow in their faith," said Mary Hall, administrator of the grant program. "We are happy to support their work."

AAL, based in Appleton, Wis., is the nation's largest fraternal benefit society in terms of assets and individual life insurance in force. AAL provides its 1.7 million members with volunteer opportunities and insurance products.

Should home buyers request land surveys?

Q. I plan to buy a house and have a question about the necessity of a land survey. The mortgage company is not requiring one. Though it would save me money, I wonder if it is wise to buy without knowing my property lines. In the past, my lender has required one, so I have never questioned this before.

A. "Many mortgage companies no longer require surveys on a purchase or a refinance," according to Gulfport attorney Donald Jones of Jones, Jones and Jones. Jackie Marks, loan originator from Deposit Guaranty Mortgage Company, explains that surveys are no longer viewed as essential for the lender's protection because their "short form title insurance policy protects the lender against problems a survey may reveal."

Though the lender may not require a survey, both Marks and Jones often recommend that the buyer get one.

What are those instances? Jones says "on a refinance, a survey is not necessary because you already own the property. When you buy, a survey can be critical." Jones gave one example in which a property line ran through a swimming pool. Though Jones says he is not in a position to require surveys, he does recommend them. In fact, he asks clients who decline to have a survey sign a waiver indicating they have been informed of their right to obtain a survey and have chosen not to request one.

Marks recommends surveys depending on the situation. She doesn't recommend them when refinancing. On a purchase, she often suggests the buyer ask the seller for copies of previous surveys to save money.

"If no fences or buildings have been added, the old survey may be adequate. You have to look at the individual situation. Is the property in an established area, are you buying a small lot or several acres of land, has anything changed that could affect property lines?"

Mike Cassidy, professional land surveyor with Cassidy and Associates, and Beth Carlee, vice-president and Gulfport branch manager for Mortgage Guaranty Corporation are more emphatic about the need for a survey.

Carlee tells her customers "a new survey is always money well spent. Lot lines and encroachments change and fences go up." She tells home buyers that they can ask the seller to pay the cost of the survey, approximately $185.

"Though our company does not always require a survey, close to 90 percent of our transactions get a brand new survey."

Cassidy indicates that "the consumer, especially the first-time home buyer, is completely ignorant about what is going on. Depending upon the lender and closing attorney, they may not be informed of the importance of a survey. Without a survey, they are buying some dirt but they don't know how much or exactly where it is. Problems are occurring more often as a lot of rural property becomes subdivisions." Cassidy says, "Lenders are gambling that the problem is not severe. Even realtors get intimidated by lenders and fail to encourage surveys."

Cassidy points out three problems that result from the home buyer failing to purchase a survey: loss of time, money and goodwill between neighbors.

"The majority of situations occur when the homeowner is about to sell. The prudent buyer requests a survey and finds problems. Closings are delayed. The selling price may be negotiated down."

Other costs involve applications and attorney costs to have easements vacated, buying property from neighboring homeowners, or even moving buildings to adhere to property lines. Relations between neighbors become strained and as Cassidy points out, those tensions may never go away.

Thanks for your timely question. You brought to my attention a trend that has consequences for the biggest investment most families ever make. We can't blame the mortgage lenders for not requiring a document they don't need.

We do need to educate home buyers that they may need a survey whether their lender requires it or not. I hope the answer to your question will reach many home buyers before they purchase a home without a survey.

Disaster loan application deadline nears

U.S. Small Business Administration (SBA) District Director Janita Stewart reminds that May 2 is the deadline for submitting physical damage disaster loan applications for damages caused by tornadoes which occurred Feb. 19.

According to Stewart, homeowners, renters and businesses located in Greene and Pearl River counties and the contiguous counties of Forrest, George, Hancock, Harrison, Lamar, Marion, Perry, Stone and Wayne in Mississippi; Mobile and Washington counties in Alabama; and St. Tammany and Washington parishes in Louisiana are eligible to apply for this assistance.

SBA disaster loan personnel opened Disaster Outreach offices in Poplarville and Richton from March 6 through March 14. At these offices, SBA staff was available to hand out disaster loan applications, answer questions about the loan program, discuss individual needs, and help complete loan applications. So far, SBA has approved $638,000 in low-interest loans to disaster victims.

SBA offers loans of up to $200,000 to repair disaster-damaged homes. Homeowners and renters are eligible for up to $40,000 to replace personal property. Loans to businesses and non-profit organizations of up to $1.5 million are also available to repair damage to real estate, machinery and equipment, inventory, etc., and for leasehold improvements.

Economic Injury Disaster Loans (EIDLs) also may be made to small businesses unable to pay bills or meet expenses because of this disaster.

Interest rates can be as low as 4 percent with loan terms up to 30 years. Actual loan amounts and terms are set by SBA based on each applicant's financial condition.

Disaster loan applications and program information remains available by calling 1-800-359-2227. The Telecommunications Device for the Deaf (TDD) and speech impaired number is (404) 347-3751. These telephones are answered Monday through Friday from 7 a.m.-4 p.m., Central Time.

Applications postmarked later than the May 2, 1996 deadline will not be accepted.

Plan

Casino Magic to locate in the annexed area.

Aside from a lack of zoning in the annexed area, city officials say indecision on council's part is to blame for the city's inability to enact an historic preservation ordinance.

Council took no action during its informal workshop session, and scheduled no further meetings on the subject.

With five years' of debate on the topic, and the advice of several teams of consultants rejected, council members did seem keenly aware of their own inaction Tuesday night.

Black noted that council had gone over most of the plan's text nine months or a year ago, terming it a "pretty general" document. Mayor Favre said once council has enacted such a document, it can proceed to rewrite its zoning ordinance and keenly define what regulations will control development in the various districts.

"When will that be?" asked Black. "2002?"

Later, Thriffley pushed to have council separate a "casino/resort" district designation into two pieces, effectively disallowing casinos in an area designated as a "resort" area.

Favre said the plan is supposed to be general in nature, rather than burdened with "four jillion designations." The definitions of what's allowed in such special use districts, said Favre, are to be detailed in a rewrite of the existing zoning ordinance's text.

Corps

"This wouldn't happen if the water could go out faster."

The Board's request for assistance is in the form of a letter sent to the Corps' District Office in Mobile, Ala.

Supervisors don't mention dredging specifically, but merely ask for Corps "assistance."

In the letter to N.D. McClure, chief of the Corps' planning and environmental division, supervisors said the high water along the Jourdan River caused "severe erosion to the shoreline of McLeod (State) Park."

Supervisors told McClure

they understood that the county would be required to pay for 25 percent of what it might cost to alleviate the problem.

Following last May's flooding, the previous Board of Supervisors also requested Corps assistance, but no dredging occurred.

At their May 16 meeting, supervisors also took under advisement several bids received on furnishing new motor graders for the Seawall and Road Departments and two diesel powered tractors.

Board President Philip

Moran also asked Purchasing Director Suzette Necaise to get bids on providing beepers and portable radios for each of the supervisors, and a portable radio for Chancery Clerk Tim Kellar.

Moran said he and District 4 Supervisor Steve Seymour were in his personal van surveying area creeks during last week's heavy rains, and couldn't communicate with county personnel.

He said the equipment would resolve future communication problems, especially during emergencies.

Roads

cent of the people who will be working at the site will be using Lower Bay Road.

Miller suggested that Moran call the governor's chief of MDEC, Jimmy Heidel, to formally make a request for funding the project, and Moran put in the call.

Pressed by Heidel about how much would be needed, Moran joked, "about $10 million," but later told the media the figure was just grabbed out of the air.

Before they meet with Heidel, Moran said he would ask Miller and the other road officials to come up with more realistic figures.

Heidel agreed to meet with the group at his office in Jackson, but, at press time, no exact date for the meeting was scheduled.

Miller said Lakeshore Drive and Lower Bay Road are on the state-aid system, and funds are available for improving both roads. Plans are to widen each to two 12-foot lanes, pave them with new asphalt, and install necessary culverts and drainage.

Lakeshore would be widened to Gulfview Elementary School, but Miller said the state Highway Department has escrowed special gaming funds for roads impacted by casinos.

He said some of those funds might be tapped to widen Lakeshore Drive past Gulfview Elementary and down to Beach Boulevard.

Schools struggle with schedules

BY RICHARD MEEK

Bells will no doubt ring the start of the new year in the fall for Bay-Waveland students, but at what time is anyone's guess.

The school board is grappling with a schedule dilemma that may result in a time change for the third time in as many years. After two lengthy discussions, including one Monday night, the issue remains unresolved.

The problem centers around transporting Bay High's vo-tech students to the vo-tech center at Hancock High School. Both school districts are changing to "block" scheduling next year, meaning the day will be divided into four periods, instead of seven.

The paradox lies in solving the logistics of transporting Bay High's vo-tech students to and from Hancock without them losing classroom time. Bay Superintendent Paul Tisdale pointed out that if the stalemate persists, then the vo-tech students, projected at approximately 40, will only be able to earn three credits per semester, and not four.

"Something is escaping me," board member Bryon Griffith said after a lengthy discussion Monday. "There has to be a novel way to resolve this."

Currently, Hancock High School's day begins at 7:40 a.m. and dismisses at 3:05 p.m. Bay High begins at 7:30 a.m. and dismisses at 3 p.m.

An earlier start by Hancock would be more advantageous to Bay High, but that would also require Hancock High students boarding busses before 6 a.m., something county school officials are against, representative Eddie Danzey told the Bay School Board Monday.

The Bay Waveland board is attempting to fine-tune a schedule that would allow vo-tech students to take two classes at Hancock in the morning, and somehow return to Bay High in time for afternoon classes. That may mean a shortened lunch break for those vo-tech students.

One possibility discussed was serving vo-tech students lunch on the bus ride back to Bay High, but Tisdale admitted to "having reservations" about such a move. Additionally, board officials and attorney Ronnie Artigues Jr., agreed it is unlikely that Laidlaw, the district's transportation carrier, or any other private carrier would accept that liability.

Also discussed was the possibility of transporting the vo-tech students to Hancock in the afternoon, and contracting with Laidlaw for a custom route to transport those students home. Although a possible solution, it is one that may also carry a hefty pricetag from Laidlaw.

"We are trying to explore all options and strike a happy medium," Tisdale said.

Regardless of the outcome, the high school will be forced to add several minutes to the day because of state requirements. The school day will be broken into four, 95-minute blocks, with approximately 30 minutes allowed for lunch.

Ninety-minute blocks were originally discussed, but that would have fallen short of state mandates.

The board also listened to an update on the beleaguered track project at Joe McCullough Stadium from project foreman M.H. Ritchie of Southwest Recreational Industries, Inc., the company building the facility.

Ritchie informed members that construction, originally slated to begin Feb. 1, finally got underway last week. He said the "biggest problem" is that the underneath surface is "soaked, and in some places we are having to go three feet deep to get to solid ground."

Ritchie also posed several drainage options to board members, the most costly being the installation of six catch basins and approximately 1,200 feet of pipe at a cost of $17,000. The board delayed action on the drainage, since it was also pointed out that if maintenance crews correctly maintain the field, that should be sufficient to guarantee proper drainage.

Artigues explained to the board that the contract with Southwest stipulates the company has 120 days from Feb. 1, which would be May 30, to complete the project. If not, the district may be entitled to "actual damages" incurred because of the delay.

Ritchie said he expects to have the excavating and pouring of the base surface completed in three weeks, and for the pouring of the top surface to begin a week to 10 days after.

Billy Rhodes told the board it would cost "from $2,000 to $2,200" to relocate the goal posts, and reassemble the bleachers. The goal posts have to be relocated because the track installation is forcing the field to be shifted by about seven feet to the visitors' side.

The bleachers had to be removed to make room for track construction.

The track will be eight lines wide, with 40-inch lanes, on a black, polyurethane synthetic surface, similar to a Eurotan surface currently in use at Mississippi State.

Three arrested on drug charges

BY RICHARD MEEK

Three Tennessee men were arrested on drug charges, following a routine traffic stop on Interstate 10 on April 16.

Hancock County Sheriff Deputy Tim Broder stopped the driver of a vehicle on that was apparently swerving on the highway, according to Nathan Hoda Jr. of the sheriff's department. Hoda said when Broder approached the vehicle, the smell of marijuana was apparent.

Broder asked permission to search the car, and when conducting the investigation, found two small bags of marijuana that amounted to less than an ounce of marijuana.

Hoda said the car was impounded, and when searched further, three additional ounces of marijuana was discovered. Also, $2,500 found on the mer-was forfeited.

Hoda said Kenneth McDonald was booked on a simple possession charge, Thomas Johnson was booked on possession of paraphernalia, and Richard Johnson was charged with possession with intent to distribute.

McDonald and Thomas Johnson are free on bond. Richard Bond is being held in the Hancock County Justice Facility on a $10,000 bond.

Hoda said the men were apparently in route from Tennessee to Florida when Broder stopped them.

Hancock Elementary celebrates Multicultural Awareness Month

Recently the students of Hancock Elementary hosted a Multicultural Food Fair and Program in celebration of Multicultural Awareness Month. Each grade level was assigned a country to research. The month long research included the study of culture, language, food, geography and other points of interest.

The Multicultural Fair consisted of booths displaying artifacts and reports representing each assigned country. Each booth also offered "a taste of the country." Native foods, provided by the HNCE food service personnel, were sampled by students as they viewed each booth.

The Kindergarten booth, served pieces of a huge rocket cake representing NASA. They researched Hancock County and Mississippi. First graders studied the U.S.A. and served hot dogs and baked beans. The Multi Age classes studied Canada and served cheese cubes. The second grade booth served burritos representing Mexico. Third grade served tea cakes representing Europe. Fourth grade served egg rolls representing Asia. Fifth grade served pork representing Africa. The sixth grade booth served olives representing Ancient Greece and Rome.

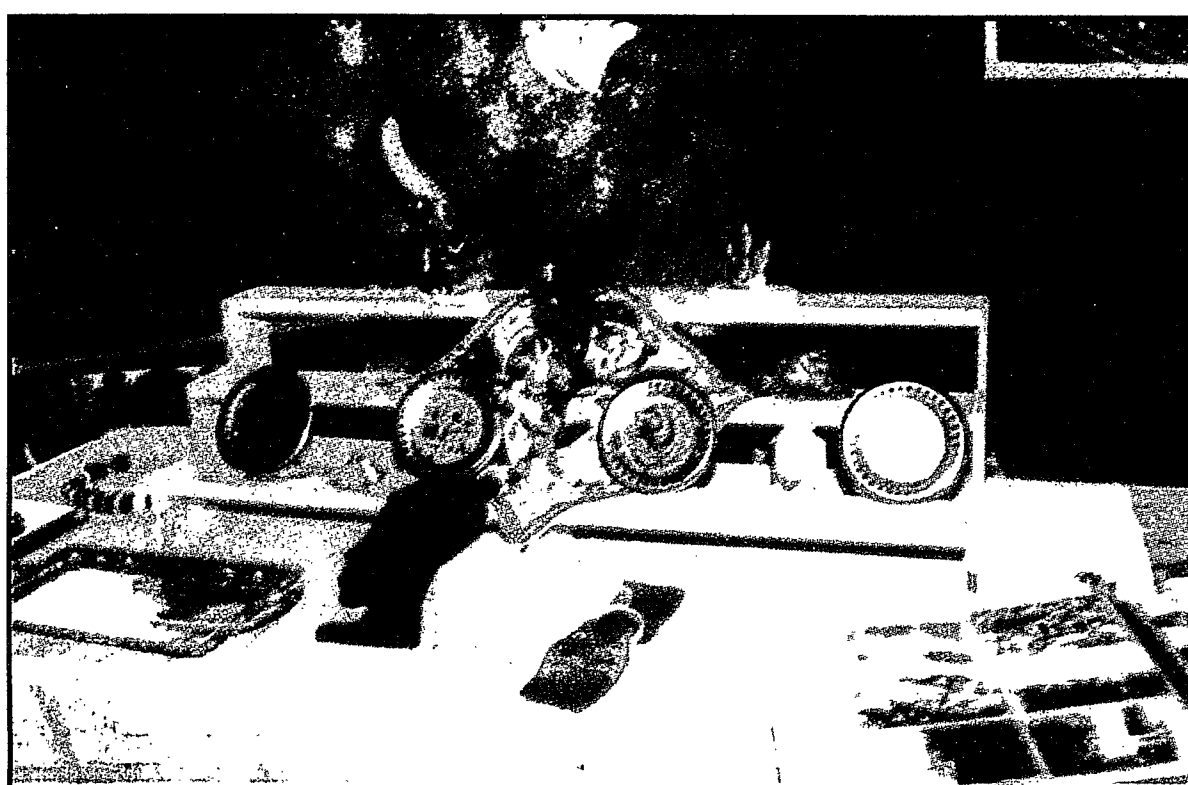

The Multicultural Program was the grand finale of the month long study. The program began with an Olympic style walk around the gym by each class bearing flags and banners and dressed in costumes symbolic of the people and places they had studied. Following the parade each class shared what they had learned through song, dance, skits and narratives with the student body.

(Pictured right) Students had a wide variety of booths to view during Hancock Elementary's multicultural fair held recently. (Pictured below) The African booth was made up by the fifth graders.

BETWEEN THE LINES

By Richard Meek

Although Jeff Hartlage may never participate in the Olympics, the 34-year-old Diamondhead resident earned his gold medal a week ago when he crossed the finish line at the 100th running of the Boston Marathon, the country's premiere road race.

Hartlage, a former member of the Louisiana Tech track team and who has competed in Europe, finished with a time of 3:07.34, placing him fifth among the Mississippi contingent and about 3,000th overall in the field of 9,000. He admitted it was his slowest ever marathon but that did little to diminish his accomplishment.

Moses Tanui of Kenya won the race with a time of 2:50.16. "This is as close to the Olympics as I'll get," Hartlage said.

upon his return to Diamondhead and his career as an airplane salesman for United Aircraft.

"It's like being king of Rex (on Mardi Gras in New Orleans)," he added. "From my perspective, it was the greatest running event ever held outside the Olympic games."

The historic course winds its way through several Boston suburbs that date back to the late 1600s. But the race may be more noted for the exuberance of the crowd, the one day of the year when normally stoic New Englanders display their lighter sides.

"People were 10 to 20-deep, screaming your name and yelling constant support," Hartlage said. "It was like the whole world was encouraging you, dousing you with water, doing anything they could to help you. "Small children along the course handed water and oranges to anyone in need, taking great delight in anyone in acceptance of their refreshments."

Wesley College, a noted New England school for women, marks the halfway point. It was here where Hartlage said the crowd was near its loudest.

"A man can understand what it must have been like to have been a Beatle in the 60s," Hartlage said. "The women who ran by received even louder cheers of support."

The din grew louder at Heartbreak Hill, the last of the so-called "great hills" that is only five miles from the finish. Heartbreak Hill is so dubbed because a runner first lost a race there in 1934. Through the years, Heartbreak Hill has lived up to its moniker, claiming not only those in contention, but those just hoping to finish.

His own Olympics

"If not prepared, (Heartbreak Hill) can cause great damage," said Hartlage, competing for the Athletes in Action Track and Field team, the athletic ministry wing of Campus Crusade for Christ.

"There were some of the loudest crowds at Heartbreak Hill," he added. "There was a man beating a large drum, and people clapping and chanting. It wasn't overwhelming, but it was significant."

The race began under ideal weather conditions, with temperatures in the upper 40s and sunny. Hartlage started well, running among the top 200, but fell victim to blisters and leg cramps. Early in the race, he projected a time of 2:36, but the physical ailments caused him to slow his pace.

"The hills were my downfall," said Hartlage, who trained by running 100 miles a week on any hill he could find, including bridges.

"Coming down created problems," he said. "The pounding took its toll."

By race's end, the temperature had dropped to the low 40s, and the runners were challenged by a stern headwind. But even with feet aching, and legs cramping, it was an emotional Hartlage who crossed the finish line.

"I would not trade the experience for the world," said Hartlage, who spent nearly an hour in the medical tent afterward.

"It exceeded my expectations," he added. "The crowd was larger, and the women at Wesley College louder than I thought."

"It's the sense of history and tradition that really makes the race."

Like so many Americans, Hartlage will find a comfortable spot in August to view the Summer Olympics. But more fortunate than most, he will be able to flip through a scrapbook of Boston memories and empathize with the emotions of the athletes.

There's Really No Such Thing As A "Slipped Disc"

The correct scientific term is herniated nucleus pulposus, but most people use the expression "slipped disc" when referring to a spinal disc problem. Would you believe that there is no such thing as a "slipped disc"? The pads or cartilage material (the disc) between the vertebrae actually does not slip at all, what really happens is the vertebra itself becomes misaligned and the disc protrudes and presses on the spinal cord or nerves. This produces much pain, sometimes so intense it disables its victim.

Normally, spinal discs perform their duties perfectly for a lifetime, but occasionally they herniate (protrude) as the result of a fall, an auto accident, whiplash, strain from lifting improperly or too much, a blow to the neck or the back area. Even repeated sitting or standing in a stressful way can bring on disc problems.

Then there are disc problems that develop slowly through disc degeneration and thinning, a process that is so gradual over the years that it can go unnoticed until it demands attention.

Treatment for a disc problem must be tailored to the specific cause. A thorough chiropractic examination can determine whether the pain is caused by disc failure, vertebral misalignments, or other problems.

When acute analysis of this type of problem locates the specific cause, expertise beyond the scope of the average medical doctor is required to return the vertebrae to their proper alignment. Often an adjustment from a competent Doctor of Chiropractic can relieve the pain and deal with the problem itself.

Back pain calls for a chiropractic examination without delay. Many severe back problems get that way through early neglect. If you believe you have a disc problem, for your own health's sake, try chiropractic first. Many, many people have been helped without dangerous drugs and risky surgery.

Fishing equipment available

With a valid library card and a release form, residents of Hancock County may check out fishing rods and reels from any branch of the Hancock County Library System.

Sponsored by the Sportsfishing Promotion Council, the marketing arm of the American Sportsfishing Association, the loan of rods and reels was begun last year, when the library system became the first in the state to initiate the program.

The rods and reels are bar-coded, and may be checked out for one week, with overdue charges of $1 per day and a replacement fee for lost items, the same as for borrowing books.

"Since the inception of this program last June," said Prima Plaque, library system director, "the rods and reels have been checked out more than 140 times. We consider the program to be a huge success. We also see a natural connection between checking out a fishing pole and a book, and we hope this service will create a respect and enjoyment for the outdoors, which benefits people for a lifetime."

The program also educates people on places to fish, methods, safety tips and other fishing-related material.

Eye Care

by Allen J. Koskan, M.D.

SCREENING FOR GLAUCOMA

The eye disease known as glaucoma is generally marked by increased pressure within the eyeball that can ultimately lead to damage of the optic nerve. Currently affecting about two million people, glaucoma cannot be prevented, but it can be treated with surgery or laser treatment.

In order that glaucoma be caught early and blindness averted, it is necessary to be screened accurately for the disease. This is best done by the ophthalmologist, who can perform a specialized type of measurement of the pressure within the eyeball called tonometry, dilate the pupil for a complete look inside the eye, and carry out measurements to detect subtle losses of peripheral vision.

Studies show that this combination of screening procedures is more likely to uncover early glaucoma than the simple hand-held tonometer used by many primary care physicians.

Early diagnosis of ocular diseases such as glaucoma is crucial to a successful treatment program.

May is National Sight-Saving Month. Call KOSKAN EYE CLINIC at 466-5201 to schedule your eye health exam and learn how you can protect your vision against glaucoma. We specialize in the treatment of medically and surgically related eye problems.

Laser surgery is performed in the office with minimal discomfort. The office is conveniently located at Highway 90, Bay St. Louis, MS.

STOP SNEAK LEAKS

Natural gas is delivered through a system of underground piping. It is odorless in its natural state. Sometimes a disagreeable smell is added to let you know if any gas is escaping.

If you smell gas, see dirt blowing, bubbles in water or hear hissing you should take action immediately.

Gas leakage may occur from faulty appliances, loose connections, service lines inside or outside your home, or from larger gas lines. Leaks can be dangerous and should be dealt with promptly by experts.

IF YOU EVER SMELL SEE OR HEAR SIGNS OF GAS, even if you do not use it in your home - take these precautions promptly.

1. If odor is very strong and you are indoors, open all windows and doors to ventilate. Go outside. Call us from a neighbor's house (Koch Gateway Pipeline Company at 1-800-850-0051).
2. Do not turn any electrical switches on or off.
3. Do not light matches, smoke cigarettes or create any other source of ignition.

However slim the chances of danger, it doesn't pay to take needless risks. At the first sign of gas leak, play it safe.

Call us, 24 hours a day
1-800-850-0051

2. Township.
3. Range, section number.

Motorboats popular with thieves

More than half of all stolen boats are motorboats in the 18-23-foot range, according to BOAT/U.S., the nation's largest organization of recreational boaters.

Thieves steal an average of 1,000 boats a month at an annual cost to boaters and their insurance companies of $40 million. The odds of recovering a stolen vessel are only one in 10, the Association said.

Equipment left unsecured on board is also popular with thieves. Electronics such as GPS receivers and LORAN, fishfinders, VHF radios, stereo systems and inflatable dinghies are prime targets.

Some tips from BOAT/U.S. to help protect your boat from thieves:

- Don't make your boat an easy target. Use theft-warning decals, locks and alarm systems. Anti-theft devices aren't fool-proof, but they can make a boat burglary difficult enough to discourage many crooks.
- Remove valuable items, such as electronics, especially if you plan to be away from your boat for a long time.
- If you leave your boat on a trailer, use a wheel lock or remove one or more of the wheels.
- Keep receipts for major equipment purchases and copies of boat ownership documents, as well as photos of your boat and its equipment, on shore in a secure place.

Pearl River's Mathis inks six

The Pearl River Community College Wildcats will boast plenty of new talent come the 1996-97 basketball season, as Head Coach Richard Mathis has signed six premier players from PRCC's six-county district.

Mathis has signed Todd Daniels of West Marion High School in Foxworth, Shay Lyons of Hattiesburg High, Teddy Poole and Kelby Young, both Poplarville High School products; Marcus Mackey of Lumberton High and Michael Robinson from Pearl River Central in Carriere.

The PRCC mentor said his newest recruits "are the best group in in-district recruits I've had since I've been here at Pearl River."

Daniels is a 5-10, 160-pound guard, who was the Division 8AAA's Most Valuable Player this past season. The son of Flozell and Betty Daniels of Foxworth, he was named to the All-Division team for three consecutive seasons, as well as being named All-State, which helped him earn a berth on the Mississippi All-Star men's team. The Hattiesburg American sports staff also selected him as an All-Area player this past season.

Daniels' speedy maneuverability and ball handling talents are big pluses, along with his shooting ability which saw him average 29 points per game. He averaged six rebounds for the Trojans this past season and seven assists. Daniels prepped under Coach Charles Marshall at WMHS.

Lyons, a 6-0, 170-pound guard, played for coach Dan Pridgen at Hattiesburg High School and averaged 15 points, nine rebounds and 10 assists per game for 17-7 Tigers this past season.

The son of Yama and Diana Jones of Hattiesburg, Lyons was named HHS's Best Defensive Player and received the prestigious Tiger Award his past year. He was also named to the All-Division 7-5A team for the 1995-96 season and led the Tigers in assists during his last three seasons at HHS.

Poole, a 6-3, 190-pound forward, was a mainstay in the Division 8AAA for three straight seasons, achieving All-Division honors all three years. The son of Roosevelt and Marva Poole, Jr., of Poplarville, Poole played for John Miller at PHYS and averaged 23 points, six rebounds and four assists this past season for the Division 8AAA champions.

Poole was also named to The Hattiesburg American's All-Area team for four straight years and copped Mississippi All-Star honors this past season. A multi-talented athlete, Poole was also a four-year letterman for the Hornet football team and was named All-Division for three straight years as a quarterback. He was also named to The American's All-Area football team his senior season, as well as being named the division's Most Valuable Back. Poole was also selected Most Athletic at PHS.

Poole's talents go past athletics as he has maintained a 3.0 grade-point average in the classroom.

Young, along with Poole, were integral ingredients in the Hornets' championship season which resulted in a 20-7 overall record. The 6-5, 205-pound forward averaged 11 points, 10 rebounds and two assists this past season and copped All-Division and All-Area (Hattiesburg American) honors his senior year.

The son of Billy and Christine Young of Poplarville, Young was selected PHS's Most Athletic his junior year and has maintained a 3.0 grade-point average during high school.

Mackey is a 6-6, 200-pound forward and averaged 28 points, 15 rebounds and six assists for Coach Craig Wise's 1995-96 Panthers, who finished the year with a 17-13 record.

The son of Frances Mackey of Lumberton, he earned All-Division 8AA honors and was named the division's Most Valuable Player. Mackey also led the division in scoring his senior season and was tagged Prep Player of the Week by The Hattiesburg American's sports staff. He was also elected Most Versatile at Lumberton High.

Robinson is a 6-0, 175-pound guard who averaged 12.5 points, six rebounds and six assists for Coach Marty Lee's 1995-96 Blue Devils. Robinson, the son of Ethel Kemp of Carriere, was named to the All-Division 7AAAA team and was his team's Most Valuable Player this past season.

Tourney helps attorney

BY TRACI BONNEY

Batter up! Local law officers will face off Saturday morning at Commagere Park for a benefit softball tourney. Eight teams from Mississippi and Louisiana will start competition at 8:30 a.m.

Hancock Sheriff's Office Investigator Matt Karl said the tournament is for the benefit of New Orleans attorney Harold "Tookie" Gilbert.

"He's an attorney with the U.S. Customs Office, so he's somebody we all work with," Karl said. "He's very ill — cancer — so we wanted to do something to help him out."

The Bay St. Louis Police Department will field a team; the Hancock Sheriff's Office will field two. Also competing are teams from the Biloxi Police Department, the Keesler AFB military police, the U.S. Coast Guard, the Harahan (La.) Police Department, and the Orleans (La.) Parish Sheriff's Department.

"The three local teams are sponsored by local merchants, and we want to thank them for that," Karl said. "Their sponsorship enabled us to buy uniforms and other items."

West Brothers is the Bay PD sponsor; Hancock Bank and Cellular South are sponsoring the two Hancock Sheriff's Office teams.

Karl said there will be plenty of food and beverages at the tourney, including red beans and rice, hamburgers and boiled crawfish.

He added that the play-by-play at the event will be announced by Cool 95 DJ Blair on the Air.

Trotter wins Sun Coast Rookie championship

Sun Coast Speedway featured the Spring Rookie championship with 12 cars making the starting field.

Danny Beauchamp of Pascagoula held the pole starting position alongside Lloyd Craig of Gulfport. Beauchamp has been the man to beat going into tonight's race, but was unable to claim the lead on the green flag lap, as Craig moved to the front.

Bubba Trotter started on the fourth row where he worked his car through traffic several times before he managed to take the lead from Craig. As the two came out of turn four for the checkers, Trotter banked off the wall allowing Craig to reclaim the lead for an apparent win. Craig failed to pass tech inspection and was disqualified, moving Trotter to first followed by Beauchamp and Steve Pate of Ocean Springs, last year's points champion.

There was a bit of disappointment in the Pro Stock Feature as Mitchell Williams and Jamie Luzenberg shared the front row for what appeared to be a rematch of the Friday night Golden Eagle race in Hattiesburg.

It was not to be as the two got together as they came out of turn four for the green flag, causing Williams to go into the pits with mechanical problems.

On the restart Luzenberg moved to the front and went flag-to-flag for the win. Luzenberg made the white flag lap on a blown-out right rear tire as Eddie Willis, driving Bubba McQueen's car, was unable to make the pass. Willis finished second, followed by Larry Cifra and heat winner Tommy Doswell.

David and Kenny Allison started from the front row in the four-cylinder Modified feature. Although Kenny set a new track record last Saturday night, it was David taking a flag-to-flag win as he outdistanced the rest of the field.

Kalif Sellier, who has won several features this season, suffered damage on the green flag lap and was through for the night. Heat winner Jamie Farve was making a strong run to the front before getting together with Kenny on the back stretch sending him off the track and to the pits. Jody Miller finished third behind Kenny rounding out the top three.

Chris Moran started alongside Chuckie Smith in the 19-car Street Stock feature. Moran took the lead on the green and was never headed as he dueled with Smith all the way to the checkers. Lonnie Scarbrough and Randy Sexton finished third and fourth holding the same positions as they held on the green flag lap. Heat wins went to Roger LaCoste, Rodney Barber and Kevin Bruce.

K. I. Davis returned, where he won over a dozen features and the points championship last year. He started alongside Billy Joe Schenewitz, who is undefeated this season in Late Model Sportsman features.

As the green flag flew it was Schenewitz and Davis scrambling for the lead when Davis crossed up getting into the car of Mitchell Williams. Williams'

Looking for big bass? Don't forget topwater lures

As a veteran guide on Florida's Lake Okeechobee, Steve Daniel has led his clients to plenty of big bass over the years, but only with a few lures.

"If I were limited to one type of lure for really big bass, I would choose a topwater," says Daniel, who competes in national bass tournaments throughout the United States.

"Day in and day out, trophy-class bass seem to hit topwater lures more consistently than any other type. You don't always get as many strikes with a surface lure, but the strikes you do get are ones you usually remember."

Daniel's most memorable strike came from an 11-pound, 10-ounce giant that hit a topwater lure around the edge of a grassline. That's his largest bass ever, but he also remembers one day this past December when he caught nine bass over seven pounds, including two over 10 pounds. All came on a surface lure.

"I caught every one of those fish on a buzz bait," says Daniel, "which is certainly one of the best topwater lures available. It was a clear, calm day and it seemed like every bass that hit was a giant."
